Complete Position Description

The Department of Political Science at TCU invites applications for a political theory position. We are an undergraduate department of 13 full-time faculty and about 280 majors. We are looking primarily for an assistant professor, but we encourage applications from interested associate professors. A capacity to teach a course outside political theory in any subfield of political science other than international politics would be welcome, but not essential. We seek someone who will have a completed Ph.D. by the end of the summer of 2012, has a demonstrable capacity for excellent teaching and also has an active research agenda supported by either a published article (or articles) or the strong promise of such publication in the immediate future. The standard teaching-load is 3/2, and the salary is competitive.

Applicants should send a letter of application detailing their research agenda and teaching philosophy as well as teaching evaluations, curriculum vitae, and three letters of reference to: Search Committee Chair, Department of Political Science, TCU Box 297021, TCU, Fort Worth, Texas 76129-0001. We anticipate interviewing candidates at APSA in Seattle. We will review applications on receipt and begin formulating our short list on September 15, 2011, but will continue accepting applications until the position is filled. TCU is an independent, ecumenical coeducational institution of slightly over 9,000 students located in Fort Worth, Texas. Fort Worth (pop. 700,000) is a city of rich cultural endowments, including world-class museums and performing arts facilities, which also has easy access to a major international airport. It is part of the greater Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex of 6.4 million people. The TCU Political Science Department recently moved into a new, LEED-Gold certified building with state-of-the-art facilities.

TCU does not discriminate on the basis of age, disability, marital status or parental status, national or ethnic origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation and gender identity, or veteran status. TCU is an EO/AA employer.
