

Workshop Tocqueville's experiential concept of a 'New Science of Politics': European and American contexts between 1830 and 1860 on October 9 and 10 at the Martin-Luther Universität Halle-Wittenberg location: IZEA, Franckeplatz 1, Haus 54, Christian-Thomasius-Zimmer (<http://www.izea.uni-halle.de/cms/>)

last informations: <http://tocqueville.politik.uni-halle.de/> registration: marcel.rauer@student.uni-halle.de

Workshop Programm

Thursday 09.10.2014 Tocqueville's analysis of democracy

- 14.30-15.30 Opening
Harald Bluhm/Skadi Krause: Tocqueville's experiential analysis of democracy as a political and social form within the 'New Science of Politics'.
Comment: Walter Reese-Schäfer (Universität Göttingen)
- 15.30-16.15 Aurelian Craiutu (Indiana University, Bloomington): "What Kind of Social Scientist Was Tocqueville? A Few Lessons for Contemporary Political Scientists, Sociologists, and Historians"
Comment: Marcus Llanque (Universität Augsburg)
- 16.15-17.00 Discussion
- 17.00-17.30 Coffee Break
- 17.30-18.15 Cheryl B. Welch (Harvard University): Tocqueville's notion of intérêt bien-entendu in the context of utilitarian social science.
Comment: Hans Vorländer (Universität Dresden)
- 18.15-18.45 Discussion
- 19.30 Dinner

Friday 10.10.2014 Tocquevilles 'New Science of Politics'. Co- & Contexts

- 09.00-09.45 Juri Auderset (Universität Fribourg): Francis Lieber and the beginning of a democratic tradition in political science.
Comment: Daniel Schulz (TU Dresden)
- 09.45-10.15 Discussion
- 10.15.-10.45 Coffee Break
- 10.45-11.30 Hubertus Buchstein (Universität Greifswald): John St. Mill and Tocqueville. Social Science in England.
Comment: Alexander Weiß (Universität Hamburg)
- 11.30-11.45 Discussion
- 12.15-13.00 Annelien de Dijn (Amsterdam): Social Science in France and Europe: Aristocratic and liberal traditions.
Comment: Siegfried Weichlein (Universität Fribourg)
- 13.00-13.30 Discussion
- 13.30- 14.00 Concluding Remarks

Referenten:

- Dr. Juri Auderset, Université de Fribourg, Av. Europe 20, CH - 1700 Freiburg. Titel: Francis Lieber and the beginning of a democratic tradition in political science.
- Harald Bluhm, Institut für Politikwissenschaft & Japanologie, Martin-Luther-Universität Halle Wittenberg, Emil-Abderhalden-Straße 7, 06108 Halle (Saale). Titel: Tocqueville's experiential analysis of democracy as a political and social form within the 'New Science of Politics'.
- Prof. Dr. Hubertus Buchstein, Universität Greifswald Institut für Politik- und Kommunikationswissenschaft, Baderstraße 6/7 17489 Greifswald. Titel: John St. Mill and Tocqueville. Social Science in England.
- Prof. Aurelian Craiutu, Indiana University, Bloomington, Department of Political Science, Woodburn Hall, 401 | (812) 855-5883. Titel: "What Kind of Social Scientist Was Tocqueville? A Few Lessons for Contemporary Political Scientists, Sociologists, and Historians"
- Prof. Annelien de Dijn, University of Amsterdam, Department of Political Science, Oudezijds Achterburgwal 237, 1012 DL: Amsterdam. Titel: Social Science in France and Europe: Aristocratic and liberal traditions.
- Dr. Skadi Krause, Institut für Politikwissenschaft & Japanologie, Martin-Luther-Universität Halle Wittenberg, Emil-Abderhalden-Straße 7, 06108 Halle (Saale). Titel: Tocqueville's experiential analysis of democracy as a political and social form within the 'New Science of Politics'.
- Prof. Cheryl Welch, Harvard University, Department of Government, 1737 Cambridge Street, CGIS Knafel Building 151A, Cambridge, MA 02138. Titel: Tocqueville's notion of intérêt bien-entendu in the context of utilitarian social science.

Kommentatoren:

- Prof. Dr. Marcus Llanque, Universität Augsburg, Philosophisch-Sozialwissenschaftliche Fakultät, Universitätsstraße 10, D - 86159 Augsburg
- Prof. Dr. Walter Reese-Schäfer, Universität Göttingen, Institut für Politikwissenschaft, Platz der Göttinger Sieben 3, 37073 Göttingen.
- PD Dr. Daniel Schulz, TU Dresden, Institut für Politikwissenschaft, 01062 Dresden.
- Prof. Dr. Hans Vorländer, TU Dresden, Institut für Politikwissenschaft, 01062 Dresden
- Prof. Dr. Siegfried Weichlein, Université de Fribourg, Studienbereich Zeitgeschichte, Miséricorde, Büro 5111, Av. de l'Europe 20, 1700 Freiburg.
- Dr. Alexander Weiß, Universität Hamburg, Fakultät für Wirtschafts- und Sozialwissenschaften
Programmereich Politikwissenschaft, Politische Theorie, Allende-Platz 1, 20146 Hamburg.
- PD Dr. Oliver Hildalgo, Universität Regensburg, Universitätsstraße 31 93053 Regensburg.